

JOLLY ROGER

Pirate Ships were usually armed private vessels commissioned by one country with letters of marque—commissions granted to ship owners allowing attacks on an enemy nation's war ships or commerce. Many privateer ships did not hold with attacking only enemy ships of one country, once set out to sea they would attack any ship sighted, even those of friendly nations. Seaman serving on pirate ships were not paid in regular wages, but in shares of the loot taken from ships they had attacked. The greater the number of ships attacked the more loot to be divided among the pirates.

Before Assembling Model Read Notes Below

All parts are numbered or have numbers on tabs next to the parts. These numbers match the numbers in the assembly steps.

Trim any excess plastic from the parts for best fit when assembling your model.

IMPORTANT:

DO NOT BREAK PARTS OFF THE RUNNERS UNTIL READY TO USE PARTS IN ASSEMBLING THE MODEL. MANY SMALL PARTS HAVE THE NUMBERS ON TABS NEXT TO THE PART AND IF BROKEN OFF BEFORE ASSEMBLY MAY BECOME HARD TO IDENTIFY.

PAINTING PARTS: NOTE—Parts to be painted can be painted before assembly. See step photos for colors to be used. Use paints for plastics only. Paint crew members as desired and cement them onto the model.
